peace. Thinks the Regent somewhat light of credit that upon the information of his own man, for the help of his own brabbling matter, he and the rest of the gentlemen taken within the meer ground of England traitorously under trust and promise should be detained here in warlike manner. When he comes into England again will meet none otherwise than with the Warden of Scotland, for if he had been on the ground they would have had no controversy.—Bun Jedworth, 11 July 1575. Signed.

July 12. 224. WALSINGHAM to KILLEGREW.

1. Directs him to proceed to the Regent and persuade him that he commit Carmichael for a time to Edinburgh Castle, that it may appear to the world that her Majesty is not had by them in contempt.

2. He is also to move him to do execution on the murderers of Sir George Heron.—Kenilworth, 12 July 1575.

July 12. 225. The [EARL OF LEICESTER] to JOHN SELBY.

By his letter of the 9th inst. her Majesty is better satisfied touching the late disorder, for that it should appear that it was not a matter pretended but rather unfortunately fell out by chance. Until she shall be further advertised from Sir John Forster and understands what the Regent will do she cannot otherwise direct his proceedings than that he should still stand upon his guard. She means presently to despatch hence the Lord of Hunsdon.—Kenilworth, 12 July 1575.

Endd. "A minute of a letter to Mr. Selby." P. 3.

July 12. 226. DANIEL ROGERS to the PRINCE OF ORANGE.

1. As most of the complaints of the Queen of England's subjects are caused by an edict published by him in May 1574, forbidding traffic with Flanders, which is "diametrically" opposed to their privileges, and has been made the pretext for those of Flushing to confiscate their goods, her Majesty therefore requires that restitution shall be made to them for their losses and their privileges respected in future.

2. Gives the names of several Englishmen with their respective grievances which chiefly arise from the stay and confiscation of their vessels and goods, nonpayment of money advanced to or owing by the States, and arrears owing for military service.—Dort, 12 July 1575. Signed.

Endd. Lat. Pp. 6.

July 13. 227. M. MAILLART to WALSINGHAM.

Sends him four small pictures, portraits of the late King Charles, his wife, and Marshals Montmorency and Danville. Assures him that in return for the many services to him
