This image shows a heavily damaged, aged, light brown paper document. The paper has a textured, fibrous appearance with numerous dark brown stains, holes, and irregular edges, suggesting it is old and has been handled or stored poorly. In the upper right corner, there is a prominent circular postmark with the word "PRAGUE" at the top and "1861" at the bottom. To the left of this, there is a smaller, partially obscured rectangular postmark. The main body of the document contains several lines of cursive handwriting, which are mostly illegible due to the damage. Some faint, larger words like "CZECHIA" and "REPUBLIC" can be vaguely discerned through the staining.
