

To the Lords of Arundell and Surrey. 2. of Sept. 16. 1544
Attache.

Right Hon. Be

I have made a faithfull report to <sup>the Prince my master</sup> ~~the King~~ of what y<sup>r</sup>. Lords. have been pleased to command me touching ~~the matter~~ <sup>my</sup> Lord of Oxford. <sup>upon</sup> Whome y<sup>r</sup>. Highness having allowed a ~~man~~ place of honour, ~~and~~ well becoming a young noble man, such as ~~the~~ a great deal of y<sup>r</sup>. predecessors have always bene.
I see, that what was done by y<sup>r</sup>. Highness in mere inclination doth now <sup>please and</sup> delight y<sup>r</sup>. Highness the more, because of y<sup>r</sup>. Lord's noble applauding of his choice. <sup>after w<sup>ch</sup></sup> y<sup>r</sup>. Highness' commandment me to assure y<sup>r</sup>. Lord's of y<sup>r</sup>. <sup>particular to y<sup>r</sup>. Lord's</sup> service, in all occasions of greater moment depending of his free disposition.
The Prince joyed to this letter is but a small evidence of it. And, for my part, a <sup>great deal</sup> smaller one of my humble and most constant devotion to y<sup>r</sup>.
Lord's <sup>commands</sup>. I hope now to have failed in that kind of dutie so far, <sup>as</sup> that I needed to be summoned of it by any mercenary reports. And yet it hath pleased y<sup>r</sup>. L<sup>ds</sup>. to deale wth. me something that way But such is this insinuation of deceiving what I have made a faithfull report to the Prince my master of what y<sup>r</sup>. Lords. have been pleased to command me touching the matter my Lord of Oxford. Whome y<sup>r</sup>. Highness having allowed a place of honour, well becoming a young noble man, such as a great deal of y<sup>r</sup>. predecessors have always bene. I see, that what was done by y<sup>r</sup>. Highness in mere inclination doth now please and delight y<sup>r</sup>. Highness the more, because of y<sup>r</sup>. Lord's noble applauding of his choice. after w<sup>ch</sup> y<sup>r</sup>. Highness' commandment me to assure y<sup>r</sup>. Lord's of y<sup>r</sup>. particular to y<sup>r</sup>. Lord's service, in all occasions of greater moment depending of his free disposition. The Prince joyed to this letter is but a small evidence of it. And, for my part, a great deal smaller one of my humble and most constant devotion to y<sup>r</sup>. Lord's commands. I hope now to have failed in that kind of dutie so far, as that I needed to be summoned of it by any mercenary reports. And yet it hath pleased y<sup>r</sup>. L<sup>ds</sup>. to deale wth. me something that way But such is this insinuation of deceiving what

Right Hon. Be