Having considered the discourse we had this morning I conceive upon the whole matter that I can make no satisfactory disput^s unto Her Ma^{tie} unless you please to give me some answer in writing to the paper I gave you yesterday, w^{ch} I do beseech you very earnestly to do, or at least to give me a promise that at your convenience I shall receive it. And however if you remember the answer to the 6th article was absolutely mistaken, upon an opinion that it had reference to the States ships w^{ch} were not thought upon, as since you understand; & the matter it imports is not difficult, but may well give roome for a good answer.
I am very unwilling to returne that paper you gave me, just as it is, and the ground of that unwillingnes is an ambition, wherein your selfe & I am emulous, w^{ch} is, to serve both their Maj^{ties} & His highnes in this treaty in such a manner that both may receive perfect satisfaction by it; as I will hope that in conclusion they shall do. If you please to let the bearer bring ~~me~~ word when you will be at leisure this night and I shall not faile to attend you, being

I have considered the discourse we had this morning of course upon the whole matter that I can make no doubt disposed who after the manner you please to give me some in writing to the paper of your own yesterday. I do not you very much to do or at least to give me a promise at your convenience. I shall receive it. And however remember the answer to the article was absolutely taken upon an opinion that it had reference to the state and not to the person. I have you not? And I do not import is not different, but may not give room for a of an very interesting to explain that paper you gave me it is, and the reason of that distinction is an addition downfalls of an excellent, which I have not time to this paper is the best in kind a manner that has not perfect satisfaction by it. I will hope that in conclusion they shall do. If you please to be the bearer when you will be assured this night and I shall not fail attend you being

Hope. March 27. 21
