

If Calandrinij waite upon you I beseech you to remember that it imports very much he be sent out of this place with an opinion he shall find contentment in the security he expects, and that the matter will proceede. This is necessary to be done wth speed the conclusion be, & I have already disposed him to that beliefe. I send you this advertisement because I perceive he is earnest to be gone, & resolved to attend you first, for the maine point. It concerns as much to receive a speedy answer as a good one, and if it bring with it an unhappy period of this undertaking you may please to consider that for that instant we may reckon the period of the Monarchy of great Brittain.
 If I be able (for I am now fallen lame againe) I shall waite upon you this evening or to morrow morning to receive the resolutions shalbe taken; w^{ch} wth speed they be shall not by any means lessen the great services you have done this Matie in this particular, nor the many obligations you have laid upon
